Event Speakers

Simon Rubinsohn, RIC Chief Economist

Simon is responsible for overseeing thought leadership within RICS including managing the high profile suite of market surveys. He is closely involved with policy development and regularly works with Bank of England officials on issues related to the real estate sector. He frequently speaks at conferences focusing on both residential and commercial markets and is regularly quoted for his insights in the media.

Alongside this, Simon continues to support the IMF in building the organization's capability in understanding trends in global property and is on the advisory committee of a work stream the World Economic Forum is conducting into asset price dynamics in real estate.

Simon is also on the Board of the housing provider L&Q, where he has specific responsibility for the development programme. Prior to joining RICS, he worked for Barclays Wealth where he was involved in setting the asset allocation for client portfolios.

Tony Morpeth, Director, Glenmore Group

- Tony is a Director at the Glenmore Group, a London based investment and development company.
- Since the company was founded in 1994, Glenmore have combined their energy and experience to create imaginative new ways of creating business space. As a company, Glenmore specialise in the procurement of land suitable for industrial development.
- Glenmore have built numerous Business Parks and Industrial Estates throughout Southern England and the Home Counties. These include Sussex, Wiltshire, Hampshire, Gloucestershire, Dorset, Oxfordshire and Kent.
- The company also invests in property for its wide ranging asset portfolio. Glenmore has an open and straightforward approach to doing business and is proud of its reputation for honesty, professionalism and performance.

Alex Bailey, CEO Adur & Worthing Councils

- Alex joined Adur & Worthing Councils as Chief Executive in September 2013 after working in “Big Charity” at the NSPCC (leading national Fundraising strategy work). He has previously run a small consultancy start-up business, worked in public service leadership roles in London and Brighton & Hove and as a solicitor at a large commercial law firm in the City of London. He chairs abandofbrothers a charity working with young offenders and was until recently vice chair of the East Sussex Credit Union.
- Adur & Worthing are two Sussex coastal councils that became the first in the UK to share all of their services from 2007, creating savings to council tax payers in excess of £13million. With a combined population of 170,000 and an economic structural base including Big Pharma, advanced and light engineering and a rapidly developing digital sector the local economy is one of those successfully manufacturing in the UK and exporting overseas. The councils have recently adopted a Platforms for our Places strategy prioritising and reorganising their business model around supporting growth in economic and social economies.

Jonathan Sharrock, Chief Executive, Coast to Capital

- Jonathan joined Coast to Capital as Chief Executive in January 2016. He has significant experience of policy development and the leadership of major projects having worked for more than a decade at the interface between government and industry. He joined Coast to Capital having spent the last three years as a member of the senior management team developing the HS2 high speed rail project; he was previously responsible for overseeing Government transport interests for the 2012 Olympics.
- In earlier roles, he gained significant experience working with the aviation industry, having been responsible for delivering the aviation security regime, developing UK airport capacity and completing the privatisation of air traffic control. As Chief Executive of Coast to Capital, he will be responsible for delivering the LEP's business plan to transform business and economic performance through the region's Growth Deal.
